Benchmark Media Systems
AHB2 Stereo/Mono Amplifier
Price: $2995

Website: www.benchmarkmedia.com
 Hans said: Benchmark Media Systems' modest-looking little AHB2 power amp may be hi-fi's biggest bargain. It is one of the — if not the — quietest, most resolving amps I've heard. Time and again, without ever having intended to, I wound up hours deep in listening to the fringes of my music collection, thanks to the AHB2's reference-level transparency and obscene athleticism. If ever there were a giant-killer of an amp, this is it.

The gist: Revolutionary for the price.

Cambridge Audio
Aeromax 6 Loudspeakers
Price: $1500 per pair

Website: www.cambridgeaudio.com
 Vince said: The cohesiveness of voices and piano through the Aeromax 6 is unmatched in my experience in the price range of $1500-$3000/pair. If you're looking in that range, and value imaging and soundstaging above all else, look no further: the Aeromax 6 is your answer. It's pure gold.

The gist: The Balanced Mode Radiator really delivers vocals just right.

Optoma NuForce
DDA120 Direct Digital
Integrated Amplifier-DAC
Price: $699

Website: www.optomausa.com
 Roger said: The NuForce DDA120 sounds every bit as good as the DDA-100 that it replaces, which means that it's a great-sounding integrated amplifier-DAC. Although it costs $150 more than its predecessor, it adds some key conveniences, including Bluetooth connectivity and an analog input.

The gist: Flexible connectivity and a great price make this a prime candidate for your next desktop system.
